

Akon - Tired Of Runnin

I learned there's no one to catch ya when ya fallin
Intro: Em Bm Am C D Em
                                                               And they'll be no one to hear ya when you're callin
I'm sittin' on my porch watchin the law
                                                               Do you know what it's like to wake up in the mornin
As they ride past in their patrol cars
                                                               While you're starvin you're hearin bugs crawlin'
So tell me why I feel the enemy
                                                               Reminiscing on them days you was walkin
They're supposed to be here protectin' me
                                                               With pretty women on your arm
                                                               While you're starsick
I mighta been too far
                                                               Thankful that I didn't end up in a coffin
Helpin' the contribute to makin' their job hard
                                                               Somethin you see too often
Servin' fiends like these people ain't no enemy
I can't believe I'm out here killin' my community
                                                               I'm tired of the runnin
                                                               Tired of the runnin
If you knew how far I came
From where I am and where I used to be
                                                               Tired of the runnin
Don't want it
                                                               Runnin from the law
                                                                            C
                                                               Baby you gotta believe me
You can tell by the look of me
This gangsta life ain't no longer in me
                                                               Said I'm tired of the runnin
                                                               Tired of the runnin
And I'm tired of the runnin
                                                               Tired of the runnin
Tired of the runnin
                                                               Runnin from the law
Runnin from the law
                                                               Baby ya gotta believe me
Baby you gotta believe me
                                                                       Fm
                                                               Said I'm tired.....
Said I'm tired of the runnin
                                                               Solo: Em Bm
Tired of the runnin
Tired of the runnin
                                                               So tired.....
Runnin from the law
                                                               Said I'm tired....
                                                                        C D
                                                                 Am
                                                               So tired.....
I know there's things I coulda changed girl
                                                               Said I'm tired of the runnin
I know there's things I coulda done a lot better
                                                               Tired of the runnin
                                                               Tired of the runnin
Instead I'm in the streets tryin' to make that cheddar
                                                               Runnin from the law
Thinkin' in my mind you gonna be there forever
I know I coulda let it all go
Let it all go
                                                               Said I'm tired of the runnin
But I was thinkin' it would make life better
                                                               Tired of the runnin
Instead I'm sittin in this cell writin' this letter
                                                               Tired of the runnin
                                                               Runnin from the law
Thought I wouldn't get caught cause I was way too clever
