

Anthony Ramos - Cry Today, Smile Tomorrow

```
And all the troubles in my life won't bring me down
Intro: Eb Bb F Gm Eb Bb
                                                            Oh, oh, oh, oh
     Rh
                                                            Oh, oh, oh
I got problems
                                                               Bb
                                                            And all the struggles in my life they teach me how
And I'll be the first to call them out
                                                                       F Eb
                                                            They teach me how
          Gm7
Yeah, I get lonely
                                                                               Eb
                                                                  Bb
                                                            How I'm perfectly imperfect
Cuz lately friends don't stick around
                                                            And when it hurts, I just remember there's a purpose
            Bb
But I keep my hopes up
                                                                  F Gm Eb Bb
                                                            So I'll cry today, smile tomorrow
Cuz that's the one thing I can control
                                                            I'll cry today, smile for all of those walls I've broken
             Gm
I don't fill my mind with petty lies
         Fb
I let that go
                                                            All those times I couldn't choose
I don't fill my mind with petty lies
                                                            The cards on the table
       Eb
Let that go
                                                            The facts and the fables
                                                       Eb
                                                            Smile for all the ones who hold me up
And all the troubles in my life won't bring me down
                                                       Eb
                                                            When the weight is just too much
         Fb
                         Bh
And all the struggles in my life they teach me how
                                                                        Ebm
                                                                                     Bb
               Eb
                                                            And I can't bear it on my own even when I know
How I'm perfectly imperfect
And when it hurts, I just remember there's a purpose
                                                            That all the troubles in my life won't bring me down
                                                                      Fb
                                                                                      Bh
                                                            And all the struggles in my life they teach me how
       F Gm
                 Eb
                       Bh
So I'll cry today, smile tomorrow
 F Gm Eb
               Bb
                                                            Teach me how
I cry today, smile tomorrow
                                                                               Fb
                                                                   Bh
                                                            How I'm perfectly imperfect
And those nights, when I'm all alone
                                                            And when it hurts, I just remember there's a purpose
         Gm7
Feeling defeated, and beaten, abandoned, and far from home
                                                                              Fb
                                                                      Gm
                                                            So I'll cry today, smile tomorrow
I sit in silence on the sidelines as the world moves on
                                                                F Gm Eb Bb
                                                            I'll cry today, smile tomorrow
With puzzled pieces in my palms, wondering what the hell I did
                                                             F Gm Eb Bb
                                                            I cry today, smile tomorrow
                                                               Gm Eb Bb
   Bb
                         Bb
                                             Eb
                                                            Cry today, smile tomorrow
Acordes
```

