

Blaenavon - Take Care

In my cells
                           tom:
               C
                                                                  Dbm
                                                             Their naked freedom will try to kill you
           [Primeira Parte]
                                                              A Abm
                                                             Take care of yourself
A7M
                                                             A7M
When you kissed my hand and passed the note
                                                             Of yourself
                                                                           Ab7
I wondered how you wrote at all
                                                             Take care of yourself
                                                                  A7M
My side of the bed won't rest tonight
                                                             Of yourself
                                                                            Ab7
When you first walked in evening air
                                                             Take care of yourself
A lullaby went through my head
                                                             Take care of yourself
                         Ab7
My side of the bed won't rest tonight
                                                             Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, oh
Rest tonight
                                                             A7M
                                                             Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, oh
[Refrão]
                                                             Ab7
                                                             Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, oh
           Abm
                                                             A7M
But I can't stand
                                                             Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, oh
Another case of the brain that got away
                                                             Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, oh
                                                             Ah7
                                                             Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, oh
Or drink iced tea tonight
                                                             Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, oh
Wallowing, wallowing
                                                             A7M
                                                             Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, oh

Their aged wisdom will try to tell you
                                                             Ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, ah, oh
A Abm
Take care of yourself

                                                                          A7M
So lick a stamp and post me off
                                                             Take care of yourself
So that I can ride the journey of [Refrão]
A noble man
                                                             But I can't stand

I'll sleep if I can
                                                             Another case of the brain that got away
