Blink 182 - I'm Sorry

Tom: A

    TABBED BY: PATRICK THOMAS

CHORDS USED
Intro: (x4)

Let It Ring

```
D                   A
   Don't bide your time
                      E
   'Cause it is almost over
                      D
   And I know you're down
                      D
   And I'll see you around
                      A
   And I know it hurts
                          E
   But you're just getting older
                      D
   And I know you'll win
      E              A
   You'll do it once again
```

Riff #1 (x4)

A-B

Riff #2

Play Fill #1 over Riff #2

```
   A              E
   Just yesterday
   D       E                  A
   It always seemed like such a dream
      E               D
   We're unstoppable, indestructable
   E                         A
   Nothing happens to our machine
            E        D
   And there's no harm
   E                       A
   At least nothing we can see
            E        D
   As for you, not so true
               E
   He couldn't choose where his road would lead
```

Riff #2 (x4) with Fill #1

```
   A      E
```
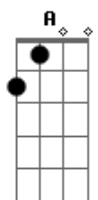

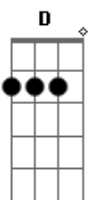

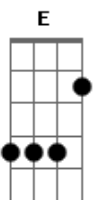

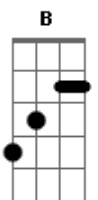

```
                    What a loss
                    D       E              A
                    You just lost all your sleep
                          E           D
                    And we've always thought
                                  E
                    That this could never happen, you see

                    A           E
                    That it's so hard
                    D       E          A
                    You gotta get up on your feet
                          E              D
                    'Cause the only way, I gotta say
                                  E
                    Is to move on through the week

                    D               A
                       Don't bide your time
                                          E
                       'Cause it is almost over
                                          D
                       And I know you're down
                                          D
                       And I'll see you around
                                          A
                       And I know it hurts
                                              E
                       But you're just getting older
                                          D
                       And I know you'll win
                          E              A
                       You'll do it once again
                    Intro: Riff (x4)

                    Play the next riff over these words

                    Sorry [x16]
                    (Sorry...) Happened to you [x4]

                    D               A
                       Don't bide your time
                                          E
                       'Cause it is almost over
                                          D
                       And I know you're down
                                          D
                       And I'll see you around
                                          A
                       And I know it hurts
                                              E
                       But you're just getting older
                                          D
                       And I know you'll win
                          E              A
                       You'll do it once again
                    Intro: Riff till it fades...

                    Any corrections or questions, just e-mail me
```

Acordes