

Bob Dylan - A Hard Rain's Gonna Fall

```
Heard the song of a poet who died in the gutter
  Afinação: Drop-D (D A D G B E )
                                                              Heard the sound of a clown who cried in the alley
                                                              And it's a hard, and it's a hard, it's a hard, it's a hard
Oh, where have you been, my blue-eyed son?
                                                              And it's a hard rain's gonna fall
Oh, where have you been, my darling young one?
I've stumbled on the side of twelve misty mountains
                                                              Oh, who did you meet, my blue-eyed son?
I've walked and I've crawled on six crooked highways
                                                              Who did you meet, my darling young one?
I've stepped in the middle of seven sad forests
                                                              I met a young child beside a dead pony
I've been out in front of a dozen dead oceans
                                                              I met a white man who walked a black dog
                                                                                 A D
                                                              I met a young woman whose body was burning
I've been ten thousand miles in the mouth of a graveyard
And it's a hard, and it's a hard, it's a hard, and it's a hard
                                                              I met a young girl, she gave me a rainbow
                          D
                                                                                  D D
And it's a hard rain's gonna fall
                                                              I met one man who was wounded in love
                                                              I met another man who was wounded with hatred
Oh, what did you see, my blue-eyed son?
                                                                                 Α
                                                              And it's a hard, it's a hard, it's a hard, it's a hard
Oh, what did you see, my darling young one?
                                                              It's a hard rain's gonna fall
I saw a newborn baby with wild wolves all around it
I saw a highway of diamonds with nobody on it
                                                              Oh, what'll you do now, my blue-eyed son?
I saw a black branch with blood that kept drippin'
                                                              Oh, what'll you do now, my darling young one?
I saw a room full of men with their hammers a-bleedin'
                                                              I'm a-goin' back out 'fore the rain starts a-fallin'
                         D
I saw a white ladder all covered with water
                                                              I'll walk to the depths of the deepest black forest
                                                              Where the people are many and their hands are all empty
I saw ten thousand talkers whose tongues were all broken
I saw guns and sharp swords in the hands of young children
                                                              Where the pellets of poison are flooding their waters
And it's a hard, and it's a hard, it's a hard, it's a hard
                                                              Where the home in the valley meets the damp dirty prison
                                 G D D
And it's a hard rain's gonna fall
                                                              Where the executioner's face is always well hidden
                                                                                          D
                                                              Where hunger is ugly, where souls are forgotten
And what did you hear, my blue-eyed son?
                                                              Where black is the color, where none is the number
And what did you hear, my darling young one?
                                                              And I'll tell it and speak it and think it and breathe it
I heard the sound of a thunder, it roared out a warnin'
                                                              And reflect it from the mountain so all souls can see it
Heard the roar of a wave that could drown the whole world
                                                              Then I'll stand on the ocean until I start sinkin'
                                  D D
Heard one hundred drummers whose hands were a-blazin'
                           A D
                                                              But I'll know my song well before I start singin'
Heard ten thousand whisperin' and nobody listenin'
                                                              And it's a hard, it's a hard, it's a hard, it's a hard
Heard one person starve, I heard many people laughin'
                                                              It's a hard rain's gonna fall
Acordes
```

