

Bon Jovi - All Hail The King

Tom: C

Heavy is the head that wears the crown
 All the people came to hear him speak from miles around
 They hung on every word a song in every sound
 Heavy is the head that wears the crown
 He touched the sky to light up all the stars
 He could snap his fingers and catch lightning in a jar
 I am you and you are me and we are who we are Touch the sky and light up all the stars
 All hail the king whose castle's falling down
 The paper prince who wears a cardboard crown
 Poor man has his money
 Rich man has his gold
 All hail the king whose fortune is his soul
 He climbed the clouds to heaven's highest hill
 When you get that high the earth below looks just like a blue pill

Gave wind to all his horses and to all his men good will
 When he climbed down from heaven's highest hill

All hail the king whose castle's falling down
 The paper prince who wears a cardboard crown
 Poor man has his money
 Rich man has his gold
 All hail the king whose fortune is his soul
 He breathed his last they laid him in the ground
 False prophets spoke of riches and said all hail to us now
 The faithful wouldn't listen and they never would bow down
 He breathed his last they laid him in the ground
 All hail the king whose castle's falling down
 The paper prince who wears a cardboard crown
 Poor man has his money
 Rich man has his gold
 All hail the king whose fortune is his soul
