                                                              They say we're young and don't understand
In his mind he was a man, at least he thought he was
                                                                                     D
                                                                  Am

                                                               They don't know how it feels when I hold your hand
It's hard to understand how old is old enough
                                                                    G C
                                                              We'll save our dreams before they turn to dust

And they ran off and got married 'cause they though it'd be
