Caroline

Am I've been looking for the time to tell you nothing feels the same since I

Moved back from where you are

Words don't line up

C Every time I try to lay them down, the godforsaken page rips out, and

F Tears up into parts

I'm tearing into parts

C 'So hallelujah' reads the church sign on the sidewalk now I pass along

The five blocks to the amber colored door

What's it to you if I still believe in magic

F See the beauty in our tragic and want to feel like there's something

More?

C Since I told you that I love you and you said that isn't true

F Because you treat love like a firework just to keep the sky a muse

C You might find that given time, The fire burns right down the fuze

And you still stand too close

C California

Am You can leave the money on the table and the silver and the halos of

The angels in her sky

But I adore you

Am So I'm getting on this train home and I'm letting all these stars go

Am I'm sleeping through the night

C Since I told you that I love you and you said it might be true

C But you treat love like a firework just to keep the sky amused

F You might find that over time, and once the fire burns the fuze

You still stand too close

(F Am)
(F Am G)
(F Am G)

C If I said again I love you, Would you say you know it's true?

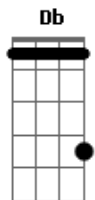

C We can treat love like a firework just to keep the sky amused

F And we might find that given time, the fire burns right down the fuze

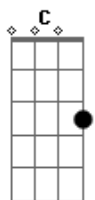

But I'm still standing close

(F Am)
(F Am G)
(F Am G)
