

Casting Crowns - One Awkward Moment

'Cause she's standing right here and you're here for a reason
Intro: Bb F C
       Bb F C
[Primeira Parte]
                                                                 One word, one hand
                                                                 Tell me is that too high a price
She's a castaway
                                                                 One awkward moment
Stranded on the island of her yesterdays
                                                                 Could be the one that saves a life
Freedom was her ocean, but she got swept away
                                                         C Bb
                                                                 Your hurt, your scars
Little princess dreaming got lost somewhere in the waves
                                                                 God will use to open up her eyes
[Segunda Parte]
                                                                 One awkward moment
                                                                                         Bh
Dm
                                                                You'll see the gospel come alive
Left behind
                                                                Come alive
She's been going at this all alone since she was nine
                                                                [Ponte]
But God loves you, He's got a plan for you, she's heard all the lines
                                                                You've walked in her shoes
                                         Dm
                                                                                                    Rh
But when she opens up her heart nobody's got the time
                                                                You've heard the lies, you know the pain
                                                               But He's still the truth, He's still the life, He's still the
Could this be the day that you come to the rescue?
She's desperate for the light but she's never gonna ask you
                                                                 One word, one hand
                                                                 Tell me is that too high a price
 One word, one hand
                                                                 One awkward moment
  Tell me is that too high a price
                                                                 Could be the one that saves a life
 One awkward moment
                                                                 Your hurt, your scars
 Could be the one that saves a life
                                                                 God will use to open up her eyes
 Your hurt, your scars
                                                                 One awkward moment
 God will use to open up her eyes
                                                                 You'll see the gospel come alive
 One awkward moment
                         Bb
                                                               You've walked in her shoes
You'll see the gospel come alive
    Bh
Come alive
                                                               You've heard the lies, you know the pain
[Terceira Parte]
                                                               Come alive
Who are you to say
                                                               But He's still the truth, He's still the life, He's still the
You've got shipwrecks of your own
                                                               Come alive
                Dm
You're too young in your faith
                                                             C You've walked in her shoes
She's a smart one, she will see right through your masquerade
                                                                You've heard the lies, you know the pain
You're scared that what you don't know might push her away
                                                               Come alive
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                               But He's still the truth, He's still the life, He's still the
But don't cave to the weight of the fear that you're feeling
                                                               Could this be the day that you come to the rescue?
