

Chris Cornell - Josephine

```
Tom: Bb
                                                              Am C F
                                                              Dying here on bended knees
(com acordes na forma de G )
Capostraste na 3º casa
                                                              [Bridge]
[Verse]
                                                              Like a raven in a cage
Josephine where can you be now?
                                                                      G
                                                              Blood of my birth
Again the sun is rising on my troubled heart
                                                              Just won?t wash away
                 D
Don?t deny you know you and I
                                                              Like a stitched together doll
     Am
                С
Are the making of what fate
          G
                                                              My feet to the flame
Just can?t pull apart
                                                                  Eb7
                                                              As I fall on the blame
[Chorus]
                                                                Em Em
                                                                               C
                                                              For someone else?s pain
Em G C
My sweet Josephine Em G C
                                                              For someone else?s pain
Won?t you come and marry me?
  Em
                  D
                                                              Rivers of black ink flood
I got every kind of love that you will ever need
Am C F C G
Dying here on bended knees
                                                              A tapestry of flesh and blood around my frame
                                                                            D
[Verse]
                                                              A living shrine just for you if you'll be mine
                                                              Golden band upon your hand
Sheets of rain
                                                              Leave this endless winter behind
Cold and gray
                                                              [Chorus]
Run down the page
As I write your name
                                                              My sweet Josephine
                                                              Em G C
With just the weight of your silence now
                                                              Won?t you come and marry me?
                                                                   Em
                                                              I got every kind of love that you will ever need \mbox{Am} \quad \mbox{C} \quad \mbox{F} \qquad \mbox{C}
Crashing all around me while I screamed it out loud
                                                              Dying here on bended knees Am C F C
[Chorus]
Em G C
My sweet Josephine
                                                              Dying here on bended knees
                                                              Am C F
Won?t you come and marry me?
                                                              Dying here on bended knees
 Em D
                                                                G
I got every kind of love that you will ever need
                                                              My Josephine
```

Acordes

