 All the ways that you think you know me
                                                                 (Oh yeah)
All the limits that you figured out, limits that you figured out
                                                                 Every single time the wind blows
Dbm
 Had to learn to keep it all below me
                                                                 Every single time the wind blows

Just to keep from being thrown around, just to keep from being I see it in your face thrown around

 Every single time the wind blows

Every single time the wind blo-ws
                                                                 There will be no good night
I see it in your face
                                                                 To turn and walk away
