[Primeira Parte]
                                                              Like on nights when it rains
                                                            F And she's pouring champagne
There's a fire deep inside of my lady that burns just for me
                                                              And she calls out my name in the dark
She struck a match on a heart full of gasoline
                                                              Passionate light and with eyes full of lightening
