                                                                You say it's easier to burn than to build
When you gave it back it fell apart, so

I won't do what you told me

                                                                But I say you lose when you give up what you love

                                                                And I've lived my life without you long enough, so
I'm not gonna forget it
                                                                I won't do what you told me \,

I won't...

Well, maybe you're not right for me
                                                                That you're only my friend, friend
Maybe it's just hard to see
                                                                I won't
I get lost in your beauty
                                                                  D

And I just stop questioning
