

Connie Talbot - Never See Me Cry

```
You expect me to fall
                            tom:
                                                                        Bb
                                                               Oh not at all
                                           F7
 I told myself that I don't love you
                                                               You'll never see me cry
But maybe that was just a lie
                                                               You won't even get the chance
I told?my?friends that I?don't want you
                                                               Cause the cards are in my hands
So they don't ask?the reason why
                                                               And I aint' playing all your stupid games
I'm scratching out your name
                                                               Go play yourself
             Dm
Took all our photos of my window pane
                                                               There ain't no tears left
Got 10 missed calls, but I hung up them all
                                                               You'll only see me at my best
                                                                           Bb Bbm
You expect me to fall
                                                               No, you'll never see me cry
          Bb
Oh not at all
                                                               F7 Dm Bb Bbm
                                                               0hh
You'll never see me cry
                                                               Scratching out your name
You won't even get the chance
                                                               Took all our photos of my window pane
Cause the cards are in my hands
                                                               Got 10 missed calls, but I hung up them all
And I aint' playing all your stupid games
                                                               You expect me to fall
                                                                        Bh
Go play yourself
                                                               Oh not at all
There ain't no tears left
                                                               You'll never see me cry
You'll only see me at my best
           Bb Bbm
                                                               You won't even get the chance
No, you'll never see me cry
                                                               Cause the cards are in my hands
                                                               And I aint' playing all your stupid games
I hope you end up old and lonely
 To see how I feel all alone
                                                               Go play yourself
I hope you tell your friends you want me \,
                                                               There ain't no tears left
 So I can say I shut the door
                                                               You'll only see me at my best
                                                                           Bb Bbm
                                                               No, you'll never see me cry
I'm scratching out your name
Took all our photos of my window pane
                                                                           Bb Bbm
Got 10 missed calls, but I hung up them all
                                                               No, you'll never see me cry
```

Acordes

