

Dakota - Runaway

```
[Segunda Parte]
                           tom:
                                Dbm
               Dbm
Well I can see that you're running faster
                                                             Out in the streets, all alone and feelin'
                                                                                    B Db Db7
Running from some kind of disaster in your heart
                                                             Just like you're never goin' home
                                                             ( B Db Db7 )
( Dbm C#2 )
( Dbm C#2 )
                                                             Then it makes you start rememberin'
They say you're too young to know the feeling
                                                                            В
                                                             Who you are and where you've been, my friend
Still your head is reeling from the pain
                                                             ( B Db Db7 )
( Dbm C#2 )
( Dbm C#2 )
                                                             Then you watch your sweet-talkin' Johnny dance
[Primeira Parte]
                                                             He'll give you the world just to get in your pants
                                                                      B Db Db Db7
Where you gonna to run to
                                                             You think he's in love
Where you gonna hide
                                                             ( B Db Db7 )
( B Db Db7 )
(B Db Db7)
                                                             Where you gonna run to?
                                                             Where you gonna hide?
Yeah, your momma and daddy don't know you
                                                             ( B Db Db7 Db7 )
                         В
While everybody's tryin' to show you why you're wrong
                                                                                   Abm
B Db Db Db7
                                                             What'll you do just to keep you alive?
                                                             [Refrão]
So you're packing your bags and leavin'
                                              B Db Db Db7
                                                                     R
                                                             Dhm
You're thinkin' someday you'll get even with them all
                                                             Where you going to, my runaway?
( B Db Db Db7 )
                                                             Where you gonna run to?
                                                                                    B Db
                                                                                            Db7 Db7
                                                             Where you gonna run and hide?
Then you're out on your own for the first time
                                                              Will you find the answers, runaway?
                                             B Db Db Db7
You're lookin' back for the last time, how do you feel?
                                                                  Gbm
                                                             In the dark of the night
( B Db Db7 )
                                                             Where there's no one to hold your hand
Where you gonna to run to
                                                             [Ponte] B Db B A B
Where you gonna hide
                                                             [Solo] Dbm B A B
                                                                   Gbm Abm Dbm B
( B Db Db7 )
                                                                   Gbm Abm A B Cm
                      Abm
                                                             [Refrão]
What'll you do just to keep you alive?
                                                                   В
                                                             Where you going to, my runaway?
[Refrão]
                                                             Ghm
        В
                                                             Where you gonna run to?
                                                                                   B Db Db7 Db7
Where you going to, my runaway?
                                                             Where you gonna run and hide?
Where you gonna run to?
                                                              Will you find the answers, runaway?
                      B Db
                              Dh7 Dh7
Where you gonna run and hide?
                                                                   Gbm
          В
                                                             In the dark of the night
Will you find the answers, runaway
                                                                         Abm
                                                             Where there's no one to hold your hand
     Gbm
In the dark of the night
            Abm
                                                             [Solo] Dbm B Dbm B
Where there's no one to hold your hand
                                                                   Gbm Abm A B
( B Db )
                                                             [Final]
                                                                   Gbm
                                                                              Abm A B
                                                             In the dark of the night
```

Acordes

