

Demi Lovato - Sorry To Myself

I was the king of pain
                tom:
                                                               I always found a new way to complain
Intro: G Bm C
                                                               And they say: When you gonna change, honey?
[Primeira Parte]
                                                               When you gonna face it? Why you gonna waste it?
I could point fingers at everyone else, but [Refrão]
Sooner or later, it lands on myself
                                                               I'm sorry to myself
My mistakes have
                                                               For lying in the mirror, saying all this is love
Made mistakes of their own
                                                               For lying in the mirror, pouring salt in the cut
                                                                           G
Doubling down like it's second nature
                                                               I'm sorry to myself
I'll be true to it, I was my favorite hater, but I'm tired
                                                               For doing a number, saying I'm tough enough
Now I'm flirting with hope
                                                               For buying what you sell
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                               I'm sorry to myself
                                                               [Final]
I was the king of pain
I always found a new way to complain
                                                               Sorry for the starving
And they say: When you gonna change, honey?
                                                               Sorry for the burnout
When you gonna face it? Why you gonna waste it?
                                                               Sorry for that one ex who always broke me down
[Refrão]
                                                               Sorry for the hurting
                                                               But love how it turned out (oh)
                   Bm C
I'm sorry to myself
                                                                               G Bm C
For lying in the mirror, saying all this is love
                                                               I'm sorry to myself
For lying in the mirror, pouring salt in the cut
                                                               I'm sorry to myself
                                                                              Em
                                                                                  Bm Am
I'm sorry to myself
                                                               I?m sorry to myself
For doing a number, saying I'm tough enough
                                                               I?m sorry to myself
For buying what you sell
                                                               Sorry for the starving
I'm sorry to myself
                                                               Sorry for the burnout
[Segunda Parte]
                                                               (I'm sorry to myself)
It's funny how the world looks in a pink cloud
                                                               Sorry for the hurting
I'm glowing from the inside and
                                                               But love how it turned out
Laughing out loud when the rain hits
                                                               I'm sorry to myself
Yeah, don't forget this
                                                               Sorry for the starving
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                               Sorry for the burnout
                                                               I'm sorry to myself
