

The Dresden Dolls - Boston

tom:

^C
All the cities in the world and so very little time, and ^C So many different girls, all you have to do is find them
^C There's a wealth of opportunity, you make your plans accordingly
^B A pity that the pretty ones are usually more touristy
^C Say, how'd you like to run away from these machines?
^C Everywhere the spies are printing out our dreams
^C Seven stops in seven different countries, seven page itineraries
^B Memories thick as bloody marys, Jesus Joseph bloody hell
^G Right now we're here in Boston
^G In love with downtown crossing
^G New York will still be there in the morning
^{Em} Come back to bed my darling
^C I had Julian and Steve, you had Juliette and Janet ^B You wear your terror on your sleeve for all the men I haven't met... yet
^C I had Oliver in Potstam you had Elanor in Amsterdam
^B We're keeping score so carefully we've lost the state we're in completely
^C Honestly your foot is out the door and I've got scores of offers
^B Elsewhere and keep both feet planted firmly in the air
^C And tomorrow you can totally erase me from your mind
^B No really, everything is fine

^G Because right now we're here in Boston
^G In my apartment in the south end
^G Forget your friends in London
^{Em} Come back to bed my darling
^{Em} You can put the details in a letter
^{Em} The more embarrassing the better
^{Em} Right now I can be happy if I choose to ^{Em} I know that in the morning I will lose you
^C And maybe you'll be mad, and maybe I'll be gray
^C Before we really understand or maybe it won't matter anyway
^B We'll find out that your mom was right and you'll admit you're really gay
^C And maybe we'll wake up in a city far away
^C Or maybe we'll make up, and buy a house
^B And have a dozen kids who'll run away it doesn't matter anyway
^G Right now we're here in Boston
^G In Eden where you almost let your pants down
^G Don't worry who these jokes will all be lost on
^{Em} Come back to bed my darling
^{Em} There is nothing in the world that we can count on ^{Em} Even that we will wake up is an assumption ^{Em} But I know for a fact that I loved someone ^{Em} And for about a year he lived in Boston
^{Em} In Boston
