

Ed Sheeran - Best Part Of Me (feat. YEBBA)

```
(DABmG)
Intro: D A Bm G D A Bm G
                                                         [Segunda Parte]
[Primeira Parte]
                                                           I overthink and still forgive
                                                                              A Bm
 My lungs are black, my heart is pure
                                                          I lose my phone and place my bits
                                                          And I never catch the train on time, always 30 minutes
 My hands are scarred from nights before
                      A Bm
 And my hair is thinnin', falling out of all the wrong places
                                                                           Α
                                                                                  Bm
                                                         Your worries ain't seen nothin' yet
             A Bm G
 I am a little insecure
                                                         [Pré-Refrão]
[Segunda Parte]
                                                           G
                                                         But you love me, you love me
 My eyes are crossed, but they're still blue
                                                                Bm
                   Α
                                                           Why the hell you love me so
 I bite my nails and tell the truth
                                                                        D A
                                                         When you could have anyone else?
                 A Bm
 I go from thin to overweight, day to day it fluctuates
                                                                   D
                            Bm G
                                                         Yeah, he loves me, he loves me
 My skin is inked, but faded, too
                                                                  Bm A G
                                                         A ... And I bet he never lets me go
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                         And shows me how to love myself
  G
              D
                                                         [Refrão]
But she loves me, she loves me
                                                         D A G Bm A D A 'Cause baby, the best part of me is you D A G Bm A D A
A Bm A G
                                                                                    Bm A D A G
Why the hell would she love me
              D
                                                         And lately, everything's making sense, too
When she could have anyone else?
        D
                                                                    Bm A
Oh, you love me, you love me
                                                         Baby, I'm so in love with you
      Bm
                                                         [Solo] D A Bm G
Why the hell would you love me
                                                           D A G G
'Cause I don't even love myself
                                                         [Refrão]
[Refrão]
                                                                              Bm A D A G
                                                         Baby, the best part of me is you D A G Bm A D
                     Bm A D A G
Baby, the best part of me is you D A G Bm A D
                                                         And lately, everything's ma_king sense, too
And lately, everything's ma_king sense, too
                                                               G Bm A
                                                         Oh, baby, I'm so in love with you
                Bm A
Oh, baby, I'm so in love with you
                                                                 Bm A D
                                                         Baby, I'm so in love with you (Yeah, yeah)
(DABmG)
                                                              G Bm A D
```

Baby, I'm so in love with you

Acordes

