

Ed Sheeran - Best Part Of Me (feat. YEBBA)

```
Oh, baby, I'm so in love with you
                         tom:
                                                         ( D A7 Bm G )
( D A7 Bm G )
Intro: D A Bm G
   D A Bm G
                                                         [Segunda Parte]
                                                          I overthink and still forgive
[Verso]
                                                                       A Bm
                                                          I lose my phone and place my bits
                                                                             A7
                                                          And I never catch the train on time, always 30 minutes
                                                         Your worries ain't seen nothin' yet
My lungs are black, my heart is pure
                                                         [Pré-Refrão]
 My hands are scarred from nights before
A Bm G G D

And my hair is thinnin', falling out of all the wrong places But you love me, you love me
                                                         A Bm A G
Why the hell you love me so
            A Bm G
 I am a little insecure
                                                         When she can have anyone else?
[Segunda Parte]
                                                                  D
                                                         Yeah, he loves me, he loves me
 My eyes are crossed, but they're still blue $\mathsf{A}$
                                                              Bm A G
                                                          And I bet he never lets me go
 I bite my nails and tell the truth
                                                               D
                                                         And shows me how to love myself
                A Bm
 I go from thin to overweight, day to day it fluctuates
                         Bm G
                                                         [Refrão]
 My skin is inked, but faded, too
                                                                             Bm A D A G
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                         Baby, the best part of me is you
                                                         D A G Bm A D
                                                         lately, everything's ma_king sense, too
But she loves me, she loves me
                                                                 G Bm A
A Bm A G
                                                         Baby, I'm so in love with you
Why the hell she love me
                                                         [Solo] D A Bm G
When she can have anyone else?
                                                           D A G G
 G D
Oh, you love me, you love me
                                                         [Refrão]
   Bm
Why the hell would you love me
                                                                             Bm A D A G
                                                         Baby, the best part of me is you D A G Bm A D
'Cause I don't even love myself
                                                         And lately, everything's ma_king sense, too
[Refrão]
                                                         Oh, baby, I'm so in love with you
                   Bm A D A G
                                                            G Bm A D
Baby, the best part of me is you

D A G Bm A D
                                                         Baby, I'm so in love with you
                                                             G Bm A D
And lately, everything's ma_king sense, too
                                                         Baby, I'm so in love with you
Acordes
```

