

Eric Clapton - Catch The Blues

Tom:

```
Intro: Gbm Gbm6 Abm Db7
                                                       [Refrão]
      Gbm Gbm6 Abm Db7
      Gbm Gbm6 Abm
                    Db7
                                                              D7 G
                                                       Living in a world of pain
      Gbm Gbm6 Abm Db7
                                                       Am D7 G
                                                                               F7
                                                       I've been living in a world of pain
[Primeira Parte]
                                                       Am F C
                                                                              D7
Gbm Gbm6 Abm Db7
                                                       Without you making the difference, oh I've been going insane
I've been willing to bet
                                                       F Em Dm C Bm
Gbm Gbm6 D Ab7
                                                       But I can't go on without calling out your name
You ain't got nothin' to lose
Dbm Dbm D#mb5 Ab7
                                                       [Terceira Parte]
I ain't figured out yet
Dbm E7 A A7
                                                           Gbm6
                                                                    Abm
How you've been walking in my shoes
                                                       I've been willing to bet
D D E7 E7
                                                       Gbm Gbm6 D Ab7
Somebody tell me how to
                                                       You ain't got nothing to show
          Gb7
                                                       Dbm Dbm D#mb5 Ab7
I ain't figure out yet
Dbm E7 A A7
A A
                      Gb7
Talk to you
                                                       Where you've been pointed me to go
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                       D D E7 E7
Bm Bm E7 E7
                                                       Somebody tell me how to
Ain't it funny, you might even A A Db7 Db7
                                                       A A
                                                                   Gb7
                                                       Get to you
Catch the blues
                                                       [Pré-Refrão]
[Segunda Parte]
                                                           Bm
                                                                E7
            Abm
                                                       Ain't it funny, you might even
     Gbm6
I've been willing to bet
                                                       A A D7
                                                                      G7
Gbm Gbm6 D Ab7
                                                       Catch the blues
You ain't got nothing to say
Dbm Dbm D#mb5 Ab7
                                                       [Refrão]
I ain't figured out yet
                                                              D7
                                                                                F7
Dbm E7 A A7
How i've been getting in your way
                                                       Living in a world of pain
D D E7 E7
                                                       Am D7 G
Somebody tell me how to
                                                       I've been living in a world of pain
            Gb7
                      Gb7
                                                       Am F C
A A
                                                                               D7
                                                       Without you making the difference, oh i've been going insane
Play for you
                                                       F Em Dm C Bm
                                                                            Db7
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                       But I can't go on without calling out your name
     Bm
         E7
                    F7
                                                       [Final] Gbm Gbm6 Abm
                                                                            Db7
Ain't it funny, you might even
                                                              Gbm Gbm6 Abm
                                                                            Db7
A A D7
              G7
                                                              Gbm Gbm6 Abm Db7
                                                              Gbm Gbm6 Abm Db7
```

Catch the blues

Acordes

