

Eric Clapton - It's In The Way That You Use It

```
Tom: B
                                                                                 E A Dbm B (x54)
                                                                                                            Α
                                                                                 It's in the way that you use it,

E A Dbm B

It comes and it goes.
(B) E
                                      Dbm B
It's in the way that you use it,
E A Dbm B
It comes and it goes.

E A Dbm
It's in the way that you use it,
E A Dbm B
Boy don't you know.
                                                                                 E A Dbm
It's in the way that you use it,
                                                                                 E A Dbm B
Boy don't you know.
                                                                                                                 Α
                                                                                                                          Dbm B
                                                                                 And if you lie you will lose it,
And if you lie you will lose it,

E A Dbm B
Feelings will show.
                                                                                  E A Dbm B
                                                                                 Feelings will show.

E
A
So don't you ever abuse it,
E A
So don't you ever abuse it,
                                                                                  E A Dbm B
                                                                                 Don't let it go.
 E A Dbm B
Don't let it go.
                                                                                 I've seen dark skies, never like this.
                       Dbm
Nobody's right till somebody's wrong.
                                                                                                            Dbm B
                                                                                         Α
                                                                                 Walked on some thin ice, never like this.
E A Dbm B
                                                                                 E A Dbm B
I've told you white lies, never like this.
E A Dbm B
Looked into true eyes, never like this.
Nobody's weak till somebody's strong.
E A Dbm B
No one gets lucky till luck comes along.

E A Dbm B

Nobody's lonely till somebody's gone.
                                                                                 It's in the way that you use it,
Gb B Ebm Db
boy don't you know.
Gb B Ebm Db
It's in the way that you use it,

E A Dbm B

It comes and it goes.

E A Dbm B

It's in the way that you use it,

E A Dbm B

Boy don't you know.
                                                                                 So don't you ever refuse it

Gb

B

Ebm

Db
                                                                                 and don't let it go.
```