

Flogging Molly - The Worst Day Since Yesterday

```
Intro: D A D D
D A D D
\mathsf{D}\ \mathsf{A}\ \mathsf{Bm}\ \mathsf{G}
DADD
[Verse 1]
Well I know I miss more than hit
With a face that was launched to sink
                                                 D A Bm G
And I seldom feel the bright release
                                                                                                                 D A
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          D
It's been the worst day since yesterday
[Verse 2]
If there's one thing I have said % \left( 1\right) =\left( 1\right) \left( 1\right)
                                                                                                       D
Is that the dreams I once had now lay in bed
As the four winds blow my wits through the door
                                                                                                               D A
It's been the worst day since yesterday
[Chorus 1]
Fallin' down to you sweet ground
Where the flowers, they bloom
Well it's there I'll be found
```

Acordes

