

Giulia Araujo - Remember Me

tom:

So maybe you'll understand what my heart felt
                                                                    Bm C Am
Awkward, everyday living in hell, living in hell
                                                                       Bm C

Don't cry when I'm gone, waited for so long
Bm C

And you tell me something I already know
             [Solo]
                   Rm
  Remember me of never coming back here
                                                                    But you know, life goes on
                   Bm
Until this feeling completely disappears
                                                                    Em Bm C
             Bm
                                                                    Ooh, it goes
Em Bm C Em
Until I have again what you took from me, took from me
                  Bm
 You record every scene like a psycho
                                                                    Ooh, it goes
                          Bm
 Take my pieces and then, watch me recycle
                                                                      Surrounded by eighties and latest
So you may once again throw me into the fire, the fire
                                                                      Watching old men and old ladies
                                                                      This place looks so amazing
Ooh, it burns
Em Bm C Em
                                                                      But sometimes I forget this
Ooh, it burns
                                                                    [Final] Em Bm C Am Bm C Em
   Remember me when time makes your skin melt
