

Haley Reinhart - Love Is Worth Fighting For

```
Tom: G [Refrão]
                                                                         Fb
Intro: Gm Dm Eb C
                                                           Now I'm telling you, I can take no more
    Gm Dm Eb C
                                                           ?cause I feel the weight
                                                                                     of the world on me
[Primeira Parte]
                                                                      Eb
                                                                                       Gb
                                                           Tell me the truth,
                                                                              that it's not in vain
     Dm Eb C
                          Gm Dm Eb C
                                                           Bb
Broken promises,
                                                                                  Bb
Hold tight, mama used to say

Gm Dm Eb C
                                                                              they can't be saved
                               Gm Dm Eb C
It's al - right, no need to be afraid comp

Gm Dm Eb C Gm Dm Eb C
                                              comp in
                                                           To this day, I believe there's no shame
                                                                        Fb
Oh confusion,
               is the damnedest thing
                                                 one day
                                                           ?Cause love is worth, love is worth
                                                           Love is worth fighting for
Flying, the next you've lost your wings
                                                           [Ponte]
But I'm getting tired of all this fronting
                                                           Tell me now won't you tell me now
It feels like I'm running on empty for nothing
                                                                  Bb
[Refrão]
                                                           Won't you tell me now can you tell me now
                                                                   Ebm
                                                                                     Ebm
                                                           Won't you tell me now is it worth
Now I'm telling you, I can take no more
                                                               Ab
                                                           Worth fighting for?
       Bb
?Cause I feel the weight of the world on me
         Eb
                                                           [Refrão]
Tell me the truth, that it's not in vain
Bb Bb Bb Broken promises, they can't be saved
                                                                         Eb
                                                           Now I'm telling you, I can take no more
        Gb
                                                              Bh
To this day, I believe there's no shame
                                                                                    of the world on me
                                                           ?cause I feel the weight
                                                                      Eb
                                                                                       Gb
                                                           Tell me the truth,
?Cause love is worth fighting for
                                                                              that it's not in vain
                                                               Bb
                                                                                 Bb
( Gm Dm Eb C )
                                                           Broken promises,
                                                                            they can't be saved
                                                           Gb
To this day, I believe there's no shame
( Gm Dm Eb C )
[Segunda Parte]
                                                                Eb
                                                           ?cause love is worth, love is worth
             Dm Eb
When it takes you, it's the grandest
                                                           Love is worth fighting for
Gm Dm Eb C
                                                                      Ebm
                                                           Mmm, I said love is worth, love is worth
Thing Gm
Love is worth fighting for
     Gm Dm Eb C
                                                           Yes I said, I said it, love is worth, love is worth
Just the same
                                                           Eb
But I'm getting tired of all this fronting
                                                           Love is worth fighting for
                                                                  Eb
It feels like I'm running on empty for nothing
                                                           I said love is worth, love is worth
                                                           Love is worth fighting for
```

Acordes

