

Iron Maiden - Coming Home

```
Tom: G
                                                                    Where I've been tonight, you know I will not stay
  Em
        When I stand before you shining in the early morning
                                                                   Curving on the edge of daylight til it slips into the void sun
                                                                   Waited in the long night, dreaming til the sun is born
Em
        When I feel the engines roar and I think of what we've done
                                                                   Stretched the fingers of my hand, covered countries with Oh the bittersweet reflection as we kiss the earth
                                                                   Just a lonely satellite, speck of dust and cosmic sand
        As the waves and echoes of the towns become the ghosts D
                                                                       Over borders that divide the earthbound tribes
                                                                       Through the dark Atlantic, over mounting stormy waves
D
        Over borders that divide the earthbound tribes
                                                                       We will ride this thunderbird, silver shadows on the No creed and no religion just a hundred winged souls earth
                                                                                                              ( Am B C B Am G
        We will ride this thunderbird, silver shadows on the Gbm Em )
earth
                                                               A thousand leagues away, our land of birth
Gbm Fm )
A thousand leagues away, our land of birth
                                                                    To Albion's land
        To Albion's land
                                                                    Coming home when I see the runway lights
Refrão:
                                                                    In the misty dawn the night is fading fast
     Coming home when I see the runway lights
                                                                    Coming home, far away as their vapor trails align
     In the misty dawn the night is fading fast
                                                                                                 Fm
                                                                    Where I've been tonight, you know I will not stay
     Coming home, far away as their vapor trails align Acordes
```

