                                                              How can I be so certain in my first impressions are mine?
Intro: Gbm A E B
                                                            B If each morning I wake up with circles around me that say
How can you be so certain that you're the one flirting with
                                                              I got mine, I give in, I give up, it's too much
                                                              Come one, let's give 'em hell!
If each choir needs preaching
                                                                          Gbm
          Α
                                                              No, why not love?, you say
And everyone's reaching into their pockets to see what they
                                                              Be too hard and that's not enough in this house of cards
If not a lot has changed, but if everything's changing
                                                              Who wants to be one step ahead
Blame to see you sin, but no one sees face-to-face or eye-to-
                                                                    F
                                                              And the first to the punchline?
                                                                  Gbm
This is not how it has to end
                                                              Just one step ahead
                                                              The first to the punchline
Who wants to be one step ahead
And the first to the punchline?
                                                              When it feels like it's all closing in, mmm

                                                                                     Abm
Just one step ahead
                                                              All the lines we won't cross, we bend instead

                                                                                 Abm
First to the punchline
                                                              Never mind all the noise going through your head, oh
                                                                                   D
                                                                                                   Gbm
                                                               'Cause every time we talk, we say the same things that we say
When it feels like it's all closing in, mmm
                                                              And every line we cross, we say the same things that we say \stackrel{\textstyle E}{\mbox{\footnotesize E}}
                      Abm
All the lines we won't cross, we bend instead
                                                              Every time we try, we play the same old games, it's all been
                 Abm
                                    Gbm
Never mind all the noise going through your head, oh
'Cause every time we talk, we say the same things that we say
                                                              Now, never mind all the noise going through your head

                                 Gbm
                                                Abm
