

Jelly Jamm - You'd Better Smile

And when your smile's a song, we're gonna sing along!
                             tom:
                                                                 D
Intro: D
                                                                 Smile now
                                                                 D
Why so sad?
                                                                 Smile now
(Tell me)
                                                                        C
What's so heavy?
                                                                 Smile now
Don't feel bad now
                                                                        C
Your friends are ready
                                                                 Smile now
To help you out
                                                                 D
Don't you know?
                                                                 Smile now
We'll make the sadness stop
                                                                 D
We'll make it go, go, go!
                                                                 Smile now
                                                                 D
                                                                 Sm-i-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mile
You'd better smile, you'd better smile!
You'd better take that frown
                                                                 You'd better smile, you'd better smile!
                                                                 Like a crescent moon lighting up to the room
Turn it upside down
                                  Gbm
                                                                               D
You'd better smile, you'd better smile!
                                                                 You'd better smile, you'd better smile!
Cos' if you turn on your light, you're gonna
                                                                 It's so easy to do, come on and do it too
Make it bright!
                                                                 You'd better smile, you'd better smile!
You'd better smile, you'd better smile!
                                                                 You'd better take that frown
You'd better take that "S", add it to a "mile"
                                                                 Turn it upside down
              D
You'd better smile, you'd better smile!
                                                                 You'd better smile, you'd better smile!
It's so easy to make so, give your face a break
                                                                 Cos' if you turn on your light, you're gonna
                                                                 Make it bright!
Smile now

Smile now
                                                                 Smile now
Smile now
                                                                 Smile now
                                                                 D
Sm-i-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mile
                                                                 Smile now
                                                                 D
                                                                 Sm-i-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mi-mile
You'd better smile, you'd better smile!
Because the face you're in, it needs an added grin
                                                                Why so sad?
                                                                 (Tell me)
             D
You'd better smile, you'd better smile!
                                                                 What's so heavy?
                                                                 Don't feel bad now
No it's never too late, you could be feeling great
                                                                 Your friends are ready
                                                                 To help you out
                                  Gbm
                                                                Don't you know?
You'd better smile, you'd better smile!
                                                                We'll make the sadness stop
You'd better greet each day in a different way
                                                                We'll make it go, go, go!
You'd better smile, you'd better smile!
                                                                 [Final] D
