

John Newman - Fire In Me

I've never left the ring, yeah

                                                                And I won't be letting go
Never gonna let you go
                                                                'Cause I still got a fire in me
I'm never gonna let you go
                                                                I never wanna let it go
I'm starting with my intuition
                                                                I never wanna let it go
I'm starting with my strengths
                                                                I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
I'm getting back my old ambitions
                                                                I never wanna let it do
Returning once again
                                                                I never wanna let it go
My knuckles are so red and raw
                                                                I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
From breaking through these walls
                                                                I never wanna let it go
Sick of all the others talk
                                                                I never wanna let it go
And I left her of my fault
                                                                I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
                                                                I never wanna let it go
I was a spark in the night but you drown me out
                                                                I never wanna let it qo
                        G
So I'll take the walls inside and I'll burn them down
                                                                I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
'Cause I still got a fire in me
                                                                I was a spark in the night but you drown me out
                                                                                 G
                                                                So I'll take the walls I'm inside and I'll burn them down
I never wanna let it go
I never wanna let it go
                                                                I was a spark in the night but you drown me out
I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
                                                                So I'll take the walls I'm inside and I'll burn them down
I never wanna let it go
I never wanna let it go
                                                                'Cause I still got a fire in me
I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
                                                                I never wanna let it go
I never wanna let it go
                                                                I never wanna let it go
I never wanna let it go
                                                                I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
                                                                I never wanna let it go
                                                               I never wanna let it go
I never wanna let it do
                                                                I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
I never wanna let it go
I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
                                                                I never wanna let it go
                                                                I never wanna let it go
I've dealt with all my evils
                                                                I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
And I'm dealing with them twice
                                                                I never wanna let it go
There will never be a sequel
                                                                I never wanna let it go
And the curtain will never rise
                                                                I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
Although my body has been aching
                                                                I-I-I still got a fire in me
I held on to the ropes, oh no
                                                                I-I-I-I still got a fire in me
```
