

Justin Stone - Steal Your Heart (feat. Glenn Travis)

```
Oh, oh, oh oh oh oh
Intro: A Ebm B E
        A Ebm B B
                                                                Yeah, Yeah, Yeah(I'm stealin' your heart tonight)
Yeah
            Ebm
She a baddie from Cal poly
                                                                I fall in love with women
From the south Side of L.A
                                                                I ain't never met
She should come up to the hills
                                                                Ain't it crazy how a little fame
She told me I'm a player
                                                                Can get them on your dick
Nah I just can't catch the feels
                                                                That's just sick, y'all are fake
But this lifestyle I got handed
                                                                I think y'all deserve my 2 cents
Wasn't shit before the deals
                                                                I've been actin' savage, sorry mama
'Fore the buzz
                                                                I've just been a nuisance
Before the money
                                                                I've been thinking 'bout my life
                                                                             Fhm
When the world
                                                                And how this road is so short
                                                                I've been all up in my feelings
Didn't know my name
                                                                But I can't control yours
Used to get shut down by women
Why else would I be this way
                                                                I was looking for some love
Used to be a role model
                                                                Until I found his old shorts
Now they tell me that I changed
                                                                In the bottom of your laundry
How the hell am I supposed to
                                                                Honestly that shit hurts
Find myself inside this place
                                                                Onto better things now
Cause what I want is something
                                                                Life is nice out on the road
                                                                Different girl, a different city
That keeps me awake at night
I wanna feel your lips
                                                                Start to fill up in my phone
                                                                Yeah she told come through
When I turn down
                                                                        Fbm
The bedroom lights
                                                                Whenever I come home
I wanna show you something
                                                                Like the winters in Ohio
    Ebm
You ain't ever seen
                                                                I've been feeling so cold
Give me one night baby girl
                                                                But this girl I want so bad
Trust me that is all I'll need, yeah
                                                                Is next to me, take a breath
                                                                I want you so bad
So I'm stealin' your heart tonight
                                                                That I start to need you less
Take my hand and stay by my side
                                                                You start to feel my stress
This stories written for you and I
                                                                As I take another step
Up in the skies above the sky
                                                                Closer to your body
Yeah I'm stealin' your heart tonight
                                                                Take my hand girl
You cannot run, you cannot hide
                                                                Lets get away
This stories written for you and I
Up in the skies above the sky, like
                                                                So I'm stealin' your heart tonight
                                                                Take my hand and stay by my side
Oh, oh, oh oh oh oh
                                                                This stories written for you and I
Woah, oh, oh (Girl I'm stealin' your heart tonight)
                                                                Up in the skies above the sky
```

Oferecimento Lojalele.com.br

Yeah I'm stealin' your heart tonight
B
Gbm
You cannot run, you cannot hide
A
Ebm
This stories written for you and I
B
Up in the skies above the sky, like
A
Ebm

B Gbm
Woah, oh, oh (Girl I'm stealin' your heart tonight)
A Ebm
Oh, oh, oh oh oh oh
B
Yeah, Yeah, Yeah, Yeah(I'm stealin' your heart tonight)
[Final] A Ebm B E

Oh, oh, oh oh oh

A Ebm B B

Acordes

