

Kailee Morgue - Fuck U

Intro: B Ebm Abm
      B Ebm Abm
                                                            [Pré-Refrão]
[Primeira Parte]
                                                                                      Gb Db
                                                            He said you're only as good as you are when you are with me
                                                                                        Ab
                       Ebm
He calls me a hot head, then he sets me on fire
                                                            So I hope you're no better, know better than to leave
            B Ebm Abm
He said that it's my fault that he's a liar
                                                            [Refrão]
        B Ebm Abm
                                                           B Ebm Abm
I said hey you, with your world painted blue
B Ebm Abm
T is the brightest light you
Then he's blushing red when he's on the phone
         B Ebm Abm
He said "don't worry about it, leave me alone"
                                                            I said fuck you, I was the brightest light you ever knew
B Ebm Abm
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                           And next time you call me, yelling on the phone

B Ebm Abm

And I'll say fuck you and leave me alone
                               Gb
He said you're only as good as you are when you are with me
So I hope you're no better, know better than to leave
                                                            [Ponte]
[Refrão]
                                                                             Ebm
                                                            Cross my heart and hope to die
I said hey you, with your world painted blue
                                                            No happy ending for you and \ensuremath{\mathrm{I}}
          Ebm
                    Abm
                                                                             Fhm
                                                            Cross my heart and hope to die
I said fuck you, I was the brightest light you ever knew
                       Abm
No happy ending for you and I
                                                            [Refrão]

I said hey you, with your world painted blue
[Segunda Parte]
                Ebm
                                                               B Ebm Abm
                                                            I said fuck you, I was the brightest light you ever knew Abm
Got your car running, like you're ready to go

B

Ebm
                                                            And next time you call me, yelling on the phone

Ebm
Abm
I'll be waiting for that apology when you come home
               Ebm
                           Abm
                                                            And I'll say fuck you and leave me alone
Then we'll talk it out 'til it comes to an end
                    Ebm Abm
```

Then we'll wake up and do it again
