

KATSEYE - Gameboy

```
You're just a gameboy
                tom:
                                                                I ain't tryna play, boy
                B (forma dos acordes no tom de G )
Capostraste na 4º casa
                                                                I ain't thinkin' about you
Tell your friends that I love the drama
                                                                Not thinkin' about you
Play pretend, but you know it's karma
                                                                Lovin' you's a game, boy
You're the one that's lonely callin'
                                                                I should throw it away, boy
You can blame me, but I ain't the problem (ooh)
                                                                I ain't thinking about you (not thinking about you)
You, you keep on pushin' my buttons
                                                                You're just a gameboy
You do, with me, you levelled up, yeah
                                                                I ain't tryna play, boy
                                                                I ain't thinkin' about you
It's true, now I'm somebody
You don't wanna lose (ooh-ooh)
                                                                Not thinkin' about you
                                                                Lovin' you's a game, boy
You're just a gameboy
                                                                I should throw it away, boy
I ain't tryna play, boy
                                                                I ain't thinking about you (not thinking about you)
I ain't thinkin' about you
Not thinkin' about you
                                                                Tell your friends that I love the drama
Lovin' you's a game, boy
                                                                Play pretend, but you know it's karma
                                                                You're the one that's lonely callin'
I should throw it away, boy
                  G
I ain't thinking about you, ooh
                                                                Blamin' me, but I ain't the problem (woo)
You're just a gameboy
                                                                You're just a gameboy
I ain't tryna play, boy
                                                                I ain't tryna play, boy
I ain't thinkin' about you
                                                                I ain't thinkin' about you
Not thinkin' about you
                                                                Not thinkin' about you (not thinking about you)
Lovin' you's a game, boy
                                                                Lovin' you's a game, boy
I should throw it away, boy
                                                                I should throw it away, boy
                  G
I ain't thinking about you, ooh, ooh
                                                                I ain't thinking about you, ooh
                                                                (not thinking about you, ooh)
I been goin' out on my own time
I been doin' me but I don't mind
                                                                You're just a gameboy (gameboy)
                                                                I ain't tryna play, boy (play, boy)
G
That's mine, that's mine
Me and all my friends in the backseat
                                                                I ain't thinkin' about you
                                                                Not thinkin' about you
Headed to the club in the taxi
                                                                Lovin' you's a game, boy (oh, game, boy)
I'm fine, oh, no (ooh)
                                                                I should throw it away, boy
You, you keep on pushin' my buttons
                                                                I ain't thinking about you, ooh, ooh
You do, with me, you levelled up, yeah
                                                                (ain't thinking about you)
It's true, now I'm somebody
                                                                (not thinking about you)
You don't wanna lose (ooh-ooh)
                                                                Tell your friends that I love the drama
```

Acordes

