

Katy Perry - Who Am I Living For

```
Calling out my name
Intro: Am Am G
                                                                I can see the writing on the wall
Yeah eh yeah yeah
                                                                I can't ignore this war
I can feel a phoenix inside of me
                                                                At the eh-end of it all
                                                                Who am I living for?
As I march alone to a different beat
Slowly swallowing down my fear, yeah yeah
                                                                I can see the writing on the wall
I am ready for the road less traveled
                                                                I can't ignore this war
Suiting up for my crowning battle
                                                                At the eh-end of it all
This test is my own cross too bare
                                                                Who am I living for?
But I will get there
                                                                At the end, at the end
It's never easy to be chosen, never easy to be called
                                                                Who am I living for?
Standing on the frontline when the bomb starts to fall
                                                                At the end, at the end
I can see the heavens but I still hear the flames
                                                                Who am I living for?
Calling out my name
                                                                Heavy is the head that wears the crown
I can see the writing on the wall
                                                                Don't let the greatness get you down
I can't ignore this war
                                                                Heavy is the head that wears the crown
At the eh-end of it all
                                                                Don't let the greatness get you down, oh, oh yeah
Who am I living for?
                                                                I can see the writing on the wall
I can feel this lightness inside of me
                                                                I can't ignore this war
Growing fast into a bolt of lightning
                                                                At the eh-end of it all
I know one spark will shock the world, yeah yeah
                                                                Who am I living for?
So I pray for a favour like Esther
                                                                I can see the writing on the wall
I need your strength to handle the pressure
                                                                I can't ignore this war
I know there will be sacrifice
                                                                At the eh-end of it all
But that's the price
                                                                Who am I living for?
It's never easy to be chosen, never easy to be called
                                                                At the end, at the end
Standing on the frontline when the bomb starts to fall
                                                                Who am I living for?
I can see the heavens but I still hear the flames
                                                                At the end, at the end
                                                                Who am I living for?
```

Acordes

