                                                   And don't say you don't want no problems, can't hear through what I say Every time we drew our lines
                                                  Say you want it your way, always has been your way when it They grew legs and walked themselves down the road comes to me Boundaries is my middle name Gun play, use my heart against me always, we can't seem to

I give respect where it's asked or it's shown hold space, no way
