

Kenny Loggins - Your Heart Will Lead You Home

Tom: C

Sunny days and starry nights and lazy afternoons
You're countin' castles in the clouds and hummin' little tunes
But somehow, right before your eyes the summer fades away
Everything is different and everything has changed

If you feel lost and on your own
And far from home You're never alone, you know
Just think of your friends the ones who care
They all will be waiting there with love to share
And your heart will lead you home

Funny how a photograph can take you back in time
To places and embraces that you thought you'd left behind
They're trying to remind you that you're not the only one
That no one is an island when all is said and done

If you feel lost and on your own and far from home
You're never alone, you know
Just think of your friends, the ones who care
They all will be waiting there with love to share
And your heart will lead you home

There'll come a day when you're losing your way
And you won't know where you belong
They say that "Home is where the heart is"
So follow your heart and know that you can't go wrong

If you feel lost and on your own and far from home
You're never alone, you know
Just think of your friends, the ones who care
They all will be waiting there with love to share
And your heart will lead you home
