

Kenny Loggins - Your Heart Will Lead You Home

Tom: C

Sunny days and starry nights and lazy afternoons
 You're countin' castles in the clouds and hummin' little tunes
 But somehow, right before your eyes the summer fades away
 Everything is different and everything has changed

If you feel lost and on your own
 And far from home You're never alone, you know
 Just think of your friends the ones who care
 They all will be waiting there with love to share
 And your heart will lead you home

Funny how a photograph can take you back in time
 To places and embraces that you thought you'd left behind
 They're trying to remind you that you're not the only one
 That no one is an island when all is said and done

If you feel lost and on your own and far from home
 You're never alone, you know
 Just think of your friends, the ones who care
 They all will be waiting there with love to share
 And your heart will lead you home

There'll come a day when you're losing your way
 And you won't know where you belong
 They say that "Home is where the heart is"
 So follow your heart and know that you can't go wrong

If you feel lost and on your own and far from home
 You're never alone, you know
 Just think of your friends, the ones who care
 They all will be waiting there with love to share
 And your heart will lead you home
