 All my life I've been searching for the answers
                                                       Think about the steps you take
 How did I lose so much of the things that really matter?
 Is there no paradise, cause I feel no joy or laughter
                                                         Cause on the day when you face judgement
 Seems everything I touch only turns into disaster
                                                        You better have your story straight

                                                        Were you a good friend and a husband
