

Mariah Carey - Breakdown

Tom: G
                                                                 Do you hold on in vain as they just slip away
                                                                 (Wish)
   (Krayzie)
        Abm
                       Amai9
          Break break down,
                                                                 Yeah, c' mon, yeah, c' mon, c' mon
                                                                 Well I guess I'm trying to be
Steady breakin me on down,
                                                                 Nonchalant about it
                 Amaj9
break break down
                                                                 And I'm going to extremes to prove
Steady breakin me on down, (4x)
                                                                 I'm fine without you
                                                                 But in reality I'm slowly losing my mind
                                                                 Underneath the disguise of a smile
(Mariah)
                                                                 Gradually I'm dying inside
Gbm
You called yesterday
                                                                 Friends ask me how I feel
                                                                 And I lie convincingly
   Amai9
                                                                 Cause I don't want to reveal
to basicallly say
                                                                 The fact that I'm suffering
         Gbm
                                                                 So I wear my disguise
That you care for me,
                Amaj9
                                                                 Till I go home at night
But that you're just not in love
                                                                 And turn down all the lights
                Abm
                                                                 And then I break down and cry
Immediately I pretended
                                                                 (Wish)
              Amaj9
To be feeling similarly
                                                                 Better break it down
                                                                 Or if for your lady
And led you to believe it was o.k
                                                                 Everday the situation is on my mind
                          Amai9
To just walk away from the one thing
                                                                 Tryin' to break me down
                                                                 But I won't let it
That's unyielding and sacred to me
                                                                 Forget it (forget it)
(chorus)
                                                                 (Kravzie)
Gbm
    Well I guess I'm trying to be
                                                                 I'll be feelin' like it gonna break me down
                                                                 Turnin' me around
Abm
    Nonchalant about it
                                                                 Stressin' me out
                                                                 I'm thinkin' it gonna get out
                                                                 And let me release some stress ( stress )
    And I'm going to extremes to prove
I'm fine without you
    But in reality I'm slowly losing my mind
                                                                 Don't ever wanna feel no pain ( pain ) Hoping for the \mathop{\rm sun}\nolimits
Underneath a disguise of a smile
Gradually I'm dying inside
                                                                 But it looks like rain ( rain, rain, rain )
                                                                 Oh, I just wanna maintain
    Friends ask me how I feel
Abm
                                                                 (Kravzie)
    And I lie convincingly
                                                                 Yeah, I'm feelin' prescious, yo
    Cause I don't want to reveal
                                                                 But never the less
                                                                 Krayzie won't fall
The fact that I'm suffering
                                                                 Sober, is headin near ( near )
                       Ahm
    So I wear my disguise
                                                                 Well I guess I'm trying to be
Till I go home at night
                                                                 Nonchalant about it
And turn down all the lights
                                                                 And I'm going to extremes to prove
                                                                 I'm fine without you
And then I break down and cry
                                                                 But in reality I'm slowly losing my mind
(Mariah)
                                                                 Underneath the guise of a smile
                                                                 Gradually I'm dying inside
                                                                 Friends ask me how I feel
So what do you do
When somebody you're devoted to
                                                                 And I lie convincingly
Suddenly just stops loving you
                                                                 Cause I don't want to reveal
And it seems they haven't got a clue
                                                                 The fact that I'm suffering
Of the pain that rejection is putting you through
                                                                 So I wear my disguise
                                                                 Till I go home at night
Do you cling to your pride
And sing "I will survive"
                                                                 And turn down all the lights
Do you lash out and say "How dare you leave this way?"
                                                                 And then I break down and cry
