                                                                 [Ponte]
[Primeira Parte]
                                                                 Good luck in the afterlife
                                                                              G
Remember what might have been
                                                                 I hear the morning sun
                                                                            D
Had i walked you home
                                                                 Doesn't cast no shadow
                                                                 You chose to drift away but look at you now
And said i'll see you later
You were living the dream
                                                                 [Refrão]
               G
But when the morning come
                                                                              C G
                                                                 We're on our way now \frac{\mathrm{D}}{\mathrm{D}}
             D
You'd gone to meet your maker
                                                                 The truth can be so hard to swallow
