Intro: Bm Em Am
                                                                'Cause it's all about you
                                                                It's all about you
                              Em
You walk around the town like you born in a golden crown
                                                                               Bm
                                                                It's all about you
You're speaking with the angels loud but no one understands
                                                                It's all about you

Bm
You got the sharpest bite as any killer sharper might
                                                                And every time you get stars in your eyes
And you control the what I like, the does, the doesn't matter
                                                                And the planets align in the centre
You're so full of it
                                                                Wishing the luck to the walls in the wild
And we're so sick of it
                                                                And you're out of your mind at the effort
                                                                                   Em
You're so full of it
                                                                We see him coming, we see another
    Am
And we're so sick of it
                                                                Fooling himself in the mirror
                                                                Where is your heart? Where is the truth?
'Cause it's all about you
                                                                                 Em
                                                                             Bm
It's all about you
                                                                When it's all about you
               Bm
It's all about you
                                                                It's all about you

It's all about you
                                                                It's all about you
Bm Em Am
                                                                It's all about you
                                                                You're so full of it
You say it's not enough, you're sipping from a silver cup
                                                                And we're so sick of it
But it's the how she brought you up, to blame the hand that
                                                                Bm

                                                                You're so full of it
You counting green at night but blessings you will never find
                                                                And we're so sick of it all
You only seek to undermine, you only seek to never die
                                                                'Cause it's all about you
                                                                It's all about you
You're so full of it
                                                                               Bm
                                                                It's all about you
And we're so sick of it
                                                                It's all about you
You're so full of it
