

One Direction - Love You Goodbye

```
my heart's already breaking baby don't want this tonight.
Intro: F
         Am
                                                                           r
                                                                Hey, hey, hey! Oh, why did you have to walk out of my life?
It's inevitable everything that's good comes to an end, Hey, hey, hey! Oh, even though it's over you should stay
                                                                tonight.
it's impossible to know if after this we could still be friends, yeah.
                                                                Hey, hey, hey! If tomorrow you won't be mine, won't you give
I know you're saying you don't want to hurt me
                                                                it to me one last time?
                                                                Oh baby, let me love you goodbye.
and maybe you should show a little mercy,
                                                                Oh baby, let me love you goodbye.
the way you look I know you didn't come to apologize.
Chorus:
                                                                Bridge:
          C
                    F
Hey, hey, hey! Oh, why did you have to walk out of my life?
                                                                Can I taste your lips just to bring me back
Hey, hey, hey! Oh, even though it's over you should stay to the places we've been and the nights we've had?
tonight.
                                              C
                                                                Because if this is it then at least we could end it right.
Hey, hey, hey! If tomorrow you won't be mine, won't you give Chorus:
it to me one last time?
                                                                Oh, why did you have to walk out of my life?
Oh baby, let me love you goodbye.
                                                                Hey, hey, hey! Oh, even though it's over you should stay
Verse 2:
                                                                tonight.
                                              Αm
                                                                                               Fm
Unforgettable together the whole world in my hands, Hey, hey, hey! If tomorrow you won't be mine won't you give it unexplainable the love that only we could understand, yeah.
                                                                to me one last time?
                                                                                              F | Em | C
I know there's nothing I can do to change it,
                                                                Oh baby let me love you goodbye.
            Dm
but is this something that could be negotiated.
                                                                Oh baby let me love you goodbye.
                                                                Oh baby let me love you goodbye.
```

Acordes

