                                                            I can only hope I?m remembered by
                                                            The fearless heart that I once had inside

Verso 1:
                                                            Times ticking and I can?t escape
                                                            The pin pulled on a hand grenade
The desert air was sharp as a knife
                                                            White flags start to raise
The late autumn sky delivered the night
As far as I could see the road looked dark
                                                                     Fm
The only life I knew was about to fall apart
                                                            Take me back to younger dreams
