Intro: Eb Eb Eb Eb
                                                                 ?Cause you used to be mine and it?s hard to get over
                                                                             Db Ab
                                                                 Tell me how to let it go
Remembering has always been my weakness
                                                                   Eb
                                                                 ?Cause I can?t help but thinking
I?m failing the test of getting through this
                                                                 What it would be like
I?m trying to shake it and not let it grow
            Ab
                                                                 What it would feel like
?Cause I?ve been in here once before
                                                                          Eb Eb Eb
                                                                 If it were me
But my ego?s tempted and trying to hold that door
                                                                 It feels so nice that I can?t escape it
?Cause you used to be mine and it?s hard to get over
                                                                    Fb

?Cause I can?t help but thinking
                                                                   Eb Bb
                                                                 I don?t care
What it would be like
What it would feel like
                                                                                 Db Ab

It?s crazy how it all feels so recent
                                                                  Ab

It?s hazy the reason we?ve been distant
                                                                  Fm7

I?m not blind to memories, I know what went wrong
                                                                           Eb Eb Eb
