

Peter Hammill - Rubicon

```
Tom: Gb
                                                               (instrumental verse)
                                                               Eb Bbm
                                                               Fb Bbm
I lay down beside you:
                                                               Cm Ebm
                                                               Ebm Fm Ebm Ebm Dbm
           Eb
I am a unicorn, you a virginal maid,
                                                               Don't change your mind, don't come all orchid eyes;
and I come in laughing play
                                                               don't change your mind, don't disguise the fear you feel,
Ebm Fm Ebm Ebm Dbm Eb
but, maybe, to be saved.
                                                               Cm Bbm->Cm
                                                                              Fh
                                                               it's real,
                                                                              and you must
Peer through the backcloth:
                                                                           Bbm
                                                               guard your castle well,
I am a character in the play.
                                                               for I am the lone wolf and the boar at bay.
Ebm Fm Ebm Ebm Dbm Eb
                                                               Grant me your Pax, you know we only live today, we know them anyway.
                                                               Ebm Dbm Dbm Cm Cm Bbm->Cm
                                                               and on, and on, and into
Don't change your mind, don't be a fickle friend;
                                                               Eb Bbm
                                                                   "So long"
don't change your mind, don't pretend
                                                                           Fh
                                                               It takes so long to drown,
to something false.
                                                                                           Bbm
                                                               it takes so very long to choke on the taste you'd spurned.
Open the toy-box :
                                                               If you cross the stream you never can return,
You are Pandora, I am the World.
                                                               Ebm Ebm Fm Ebm
                                                                                  Ebm Dbm Eb
                                                               If you stay you'll surely burn.
                   Cm
If you cross the stream, you never can return;
                                                                                   Ebm Dbm Eb
                                                               Ebm Ebm Fm Ebm
                                                               If you stay you'll surely burn.
             Ebm Ebm Dbm Eb
If you stay, you'll surely burn.
                                                               Ebm Ebm Fm Ebm
                                                                                   Ebm Dbm Cm
                                                               If you stay you'll surely burn.
```

Acordes

