

Phillip Phillips - Open Your Eyes

```
Intro: D2 A G
The sun rises over the trees again
As for the moon it pushes through the stars and
You tell me go, I say it's alright my friend
                Α
For the moments we have in this life they will end
Pre-Refrão:
                   Gbm A G
I see who you are but don't believe
Bm Gbm A G
You show a side you claim to be
Refrão:
                        G
             Α
So open your eyes, open your heart and then
Watch it fall out, watch it align and bend
For all that you've done
And for all that you've shown

Bm Gbm G
It's not too late to let it go
Cause it's all yours
Watching the change, seeing the phase within
Our bodies they age and our spirits grow thin
You hear the sound of winter's breeze so quietly
So live for this day, hold it and wait 'til morning gives
```

Pre-Refrão:

```
Gbm A
        I see who you are but don't believe
                                                                                                                                                                                                   Gbm A
You show a side you claim to be
          Open your eyes, open your heart and then % \left( 1\right) =\left( 1\right) \left( 1\right
Watch it fall out, watch it align and bend
                                                                                                                                                        A G
  For all that you've done
  And for all that you've shown
                                                                                                                                                                                                                      Gbm
  It's not too late to let it go
          Cause it's all yours ( D A )
                                                                                                                                                                                                                 Α
          Open your eyes, open your heart and then
Watch it fall out, watch it align and bend
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       G
  For all that you've done
                                                                                                 Gbm G
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  Harmônicos na 12 casa (Somente cordas E e A )
And for all that you've shown
          Open your eyes, open your heart and then % \left( 1\right) =\left( 1\right) \left( 1\right
Watch it fall out, watch it align and bend
                                                                                                                                                          Α
  For all that you've done
And for all that you've shown
                                                                                                                                                        Gbm G
It's not too late to let it go
                                                                                                                                                        Gbm G
  It's not too late to let it show
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 D A
Cause it's all yours
```

Acordes

