

Pink Floyd - Stay

```
Tom: F
                                                         I rise, looking through my morning eyes,
                                                         Surprised to find you by my side.
Stay and help me to end the day.
                                                         Rack my brain to try to remember your name

                                                         To find the words to tell you goodbye. Gm7 C Gm7 C
And if you don't mind we'll break a bottle of wine.
