

Placebo - Whitout You I'm Nothing

```
Intro: Bbm Ab Gb Ab Bbm Bbm
                                                             I'm unclean, a libertine
                                      Ah
                                                             And every time you vent your spleen
Strange infatuation seems to grace the evening tide
                      Bbm Bbm
                                                             I seem to lose the power of speech
              Ab
I'll take it by your side
                                                             You're slipping slowly from my reach
Such imagination seems to help the feeling slide
                                                             Fbm
                       Bbm Bbm
                                                             You grow me like an evergreen
I'll take it by your side
                                                             You've never seen the lonely me at all
Instant correlation sucks and breeds a pack of lies
                                                             Ebm
               Ab
                        Bbm
                             Bbm
I'll take it by your side
Oversaturation curls the skin and tans the hide
                                                                 Take the plan, spin it sideways
                                                             Ebm
                       Bbm Bbm
               Ab
I'll take it by your side
                                                             Bbm
                                                                 Fall
Tick tock
                                                             Ebm
                                                                    Gb
Tick tock
                                                             Without you I'm nothing
Tick tock
                                                                    Gb
                                                             Without you I'm nothing
Tick tick
                                                             Ebm Gb
Tick
                                                             Without you I'm nothing
   Bbm
                                                             Bbm
Tick
                                                             Take the plan, spin it sideways
Tick tock
Tick
                                                             Without you I'm nothing at all
