

P.O.D - Your Eyes

```
Tom: F
                                                                Your Eyes, Your Eyes
                                                                Your so Kind.
You are my Heaven on earth, and how faithful is Jah,
To keep his promise to I and bless me with life divine.
                                                                And this is my favorite place to be.
You are whatever is good inside of I and I.
                                                                Cause you are so beautiful when i watch you sleep.
                                                                And in the moment i know, everything will be alright.
Let love clear the way cause the princess is coming.
Refrão:
                                                                Cause you are the reason i breathe.
Am Em
Your Eyes, Your Eyes
                                                                and when i need to find out who i am,
                                                                I can always get lost in...
and I can see Jah
Am Em
Your Eyes, Your Eyes
                                                                Refrão:
                                                                               Dm
This blessing in disguise
                                                                Your Eyes, Your Eyes
  Em
You got me hypnotized
                                                                and I can see Jah Jah
                                                                               Dm
and I can see forever
                                                                Your Eyes, Your Eyes
Your Eyes, Your Eyes
                                                                This blessing in disguise
                                                                You got me hypnotized
Your so Kind.
                                                                and I can see forever
Give thanks unto Jah for he blesses and made you mine.
                                                                Your Eyes, Your Eyes
and you were touched by an angel, the kisses she left behind.
                                                                and I can see Jah Jah
I know, I know, cause I can see it with my own eyes.
                                            Am
                                                                Your Eyes, Your Eyes
I know this is real but it feels like I'm dreaming.
                                                                This blessing in disguise
Refrão:
                                                                Your Eyes, Your Eyes
Your Eyes, Your Eyes
                                                                and I can stay here forever
and I can see Jah
                                                                You got me hypnotized
Your Eyes, Your Eyes
                                                                and I can see forever
This blessing in disguise
                                                                Your Eyes, Your Eyes
You got me hypnotized
                                                                        Dm
                                                                Your so Kind.
and I can see forever
                                                                Em
                                                                     Dm
                                                                Your so Kind.
```

Acordes

