Red Hot Chili Peppers - Go Robot

```
Tom: Eb
                                                                      Eb
                                                                                     Bb
                                                                Robots don't care where I've been [Intro]
                                                                  Fm
                                                                                           Ab
                                                                 You've got to choose it to use it, so let me plug it in Cm Fm
                                                                 Eb
                                                                                Bb
                                                                Robots are my next of kin
[Verse]
                                                                Cm Fm
Cm
                                                                 [Verse]
I called the teacher cause I wanted to confess it now
                                                                  Cm
 Fm
Can I make the time for me to come and get it blessed somehow
                                                                Sometimes I feel like I'm a sentimental trooper
 Cm
                                                                  Fm
                                                                 She cried so hard, you know she looked like Alice Cooper
She spoke to me in such a simple and decisive tone
 Fm
Her sweet admission left me feeling in position from [Pre-Chorus]
Bb
                                                                 Bb
I don't take these things so personal
 Ab
                                                                I don't think that it's so personal
Anymore, anymore
                                                                 Ab
                                                                Anymore, anymore
Bb
I don't think it's irreversible
                                                                 Bb
                                                                 I don't think it's irreversible
Bb
Anymore
                                                                 Ab
                                                                Anymore
 Cm
Somebody hooted and they hollered can I buy a vowel
                                                                 [Chorus]
 Fm
Don't let her catch you in the act of throwing in the towel
                                                                                  Eb
                                                                                              Bb
                                                                  Fm
                                                                          Ab
                                                                 Tell me now, I know that it just won't stop
And when it's not as it appears to be, the flagrant foul
                                                                  Fm
                                                                          Ab
                                                                                     Eb
                                                                                                 Bb
                                                                 You will find your flow when you go robot
Fm
Can I put my fingers in your mouth before you start to growl
                                                                  Fm
                                                                                               Ab
                                                                 I want to thank you and spank you upon your silver skin
[Pre-Chorus]
                                                                     Eb
                                                                                     Bb
                                                                Robots don't care where I've been
 Bb
                                                                  Fm
                                                                                           Ab
I don't think that it's so terrible
                                                                You've got to choose it to use it, so let me plug it in
 Ab
                                                                 Fb
                                                                                Bb
Anymore, anymore
                                                                Robots are my next of kin
                                                                Cm Cm Cm Cm
Bb
I don't think that it's unbearable
                                                                 [Verse]
Bb
Anymore
                                                                 Cm
[Chorus]
                                                                 I'm kissing high and low
                                                                 Fm
 Fm
          Ab
                 Fb
                             Bb
                                                                Our bodies like two dominoes
Tell me now, I know that it just won't stop
                                                                 Cm
          Ab
                    Eb
                                                                Can I come and get you when I hit you in your party clothes
 Fm
                                Bb
You will find your flow when you go robot
                                                                 Fm
                                                                Let's turn this cosplay holiday, what we obey
                              Ab
 Fm
I want to thank you and spank you upon your silver skin
```

Acordes

