            [Primeira Parte]
                                                                Do you ever get the feeling you don?t belong?
 You showed me a new way of seeing things
                                                                You climb a mountain just to prove, the way you picked is Brainwashed the worst I had inside of a world of misbeliefs always wrong?
Every step was taken in a search of glory
                                                               Every thought made is a matter of choice, you control the

But the story was fake, so much to be sorry
                                                                Let go your fears, open up your wings
Every second was wasted in a shallow moment
                                                                                        Am
                                                               A bird free from a cage flying out in to the horizon
Like I was lost in a race going around around in circles
                                                                [Refrão]
