Silversun Pickups - Dots And Dashes (Enough Already)

Tom: G

     Em                                                       A
So you want to mess with me? Caught me in a silent scream
Heat filling up my cheeks, not exactly what you think
Em                                                           A
See you in the room next door, your feet float above the floor
Dress torn above your knees like you?ve owned it for centuries
Em                                        A
Dots and dashes on the wall, you tell me about the falls
               C
Of kingdoms and champions you've seen a thousand times before
Em                                              A
I show you my private things like my scrapbook of fantasies
You say I look a little too green for saving

           Em                          D
I'm already bored, I'm already wise, I'm already worn
I'm already wondering "what am I?"
Am                     C
I'm already rough, I'm already lean
I'm already wanting to be obscene
Em                          D
I'm already cursed, I'm already dry
I'm already wondering "what am I?"
Am                     C
I've already learned a bit of sin
Enough already let me in

C                  Bm      D              C
```

```
We signal in a moon beam, I beg you to follow me
                            Bm           D            C
You say that I'll be surprised at the codes in the sunrise
                          Bm           D            C
But if I don?t like what I see and my grip starts loosening
                          Bm           D
The edge of the big reveal could be the end of the story
E                       A               C             E
I just found innocence spinning around, spinning around
                            A               C
Should I stand back and blow it all down, blow it all away?

              Em                          D
I'm already bored, I'm already wise, I'm already worn
I'm already wondering "what am I?"
Am                     C
I'm already rough, I'm already lean
I'm already wanting to be obscene
Em                          D
I'm already cursed, I'm already dry
I'm already wondering "what am I?"
Am                     C
I've already learned a bit of sin
Enough already let me in

C                  Bm   D              C
We signal in a moon beam, I beg you to follow me
                            Bm           D            C
You say that I'll be surprised at the codes in the sunrise
                          Bm           D            C
But if I don?t like what I see and my grip starts loosening
                          Bm           D
The edge of the big reveal could be the end of the story
